

Larry Martin Davis

Author, Education Advocate, Resilient Education Trainer

SATURDAY, JUNE 18th for Parents, and Educators @ 10:00am

Love, Understanding, and Other Best Practices Workshop:

Larry brings over 30 years of experience in Gifted and Special Education and highlights an uplifting message for parents and educators: heart-inspired, strength-based, and a celebration of the gift within each child. Based upon the inspirational book, Love, Understanding, and Other Best Practices, the workshop offers a fresh perspective on today's kids, especially when issues like ADD/ADHD, Autism, and special needs are at the forefront of your parenting toolkit or in your classroom.

Participants walk away with specific strategies:

- Moving conversations from Self Interest to Mutual Understanding
- Evidence Based Decision Making: Shifting from Opinion to Fact!
- Strength Based Intervention for Special Needs and Gifted Students

“I would love to share this with you and your community for our future is our children!
And every child is a gift waiting to unfold.” ~ Larry Davis

HeartMath Workshop:

Connecting with the World through the Secrets of the Heart.

The true wisdom within humankind is in our hearts. Through the HeartMath methodology and techniques, Larry guides participants in bringing their head and their hearts into sync with one other through emotional self regulation and wellness activities; these are outstanding for strategies for kids, parents, and educators; especially for families and classrooms that address emotional issues and self regulation needs.

The Institute of HeartMath(IHM) cares deeply about the physical, mental and emotional well-being of people young and old, regardless of belief, heritage and circumstance. IHM's vision is to help people reduce stress, self-regulate emotions and build resilience.

The HeartMath System of tools, technology and programs which have improved hundreds of thousands of lives worldwide stem directly from IHM's research. I would be pleased to share HeartMath with your community for our mission is the same as yours: "healthier, happier lives". Its my pleasure to share these empowering tools with you and your organization.
