

STEM PTSA Presents:

STEM Salon

- Three Extraordinary Speakers
- Cutting Edge Topics
- Salon Style Discussions
- Fellow STEM Parents
- Gracious Private Settings
- Wine and Hors d'oeuvres

This is what makes STEM Salon speaker series the hottest tickets of the season. The series provides three opportunities for STEM parents to get to know each other while having relaxed, thought-provoking discussions in private homes with remarkable people. At these three evening salons, subscribers gather at 7:00 PM to share wine and heavy hors d'oeuvres. The intellectual entrée begins at 7:30 PM and is followed by open discussion and dessert.

The line-up for the 2014-2015 speaker series is shaping up to be a phenomenal new tradition

- March 6th - Linda Hartzell, has been artistic director of Seattle Children's Theatre (SCT) and its education programs since 1984. Through her artistic vision and leadership, the theatre is now the nation's second largest resident professional children's theatre, and one of its most respected. She has directed over 45 plays for SCT, including over 35 world premieres. SCT's programs seek not only to entertain but also to empower young people to make discoveries about themselves and the world around them while also building a lifelong interest in the arts. Among her honors are ArtsFund's Outstanding Achievement in the Arts award, the Mayor's Arts Award, and the prestigious Gregory Falls Sustained Achievement Award from Theatre Puget Sound
- April 24th - Erin Andrews is the founder and maker of all things indi chocolate. Erin's chocolate journey began 6 years ago with a desire to teach her children "how chocolate grows on trees" and the founding of her first bean to bar chocolate business in Belize. Three years ago, she wanted something closer to home and founded indi chocolate, which is now located Down Under in Pike Place Market. She personally sources the cacao beans from farmers she works with in Honduras and makes delicious small batch artisan chocolate and chocolate body care (chocolate lotions, lip balms and exfoliants). Her chocolate teaching ranges from Guest Lecturer at the University of Washington, as well as private and group classes, to Tree to Bar Chocolate Weeks in exotic locals. Erin is also featured in the newly released "Bean to Bar" documentary film
- October 2014 - And one more to be announced!
